Dear Mr. ~~Austin~~:

On May 16, 1995, I attended a "Make the Right Call" event at the request of the Congressional Fire Services Institute (CSFI). State Farm representatives displayed emergency telecommunications simulator at this event. The simulator appears to be an effective way to educate the public, particularly children, in the use of the 9-1-1 system.

CSFI plays an important role in educating Members of Congress and the fire and life safety communities. CSFI, because of its work with all major fire and EMS organizations, is an excellent networking resource.

State Farm has always been a strong supporter for CSFI, as evidenced by the 1995 Supporter of the Year Award which State Farm received at the Seventh Annual National Fire and Emergency Services Dinner. Would it be possible for the simulator's "handlers" to demonstrate the simulator at CSFI's booth at the 1995 Fire-Rescue International show in Louisville?

As you know, the Fire-Rescue International is one of the premier fire service shows in the country. Both CSFI and State Farm would benefit from the exposure provided by displaying the simulator at the CSFI booth.

Please have your staff contact Bill Webb, Executive Director of CSFI, for any additional information you would need, or to make arrangements. Thank you for your attention to this.

Sincerely,

CURT WELDON
Member of Congress
